

checkers, you can swim in the pool and you can eat some free food, but you're not going to contaminate the big shots who are their principals. The only time you get invited to that is if they need your vote for a specific thing in the Legislature. Then we're talking about poor people, and that's when we come down and we're angry because some of them get something they're not entitled to. When you're talking about giving away the store to these big businesses do you talk about the businesses that cheat on their income tax, do you talk about those who split positions to make it look like they're hiring more people than they really are to get in under these bills? Do you talk about that? Is that anger manifested then by anybody other than me? Certainly not. It's when you get the little ones that you can crush with impunity that all this moral anger and righteous indignation comes tumbling down. Well, just like the bigs (inaudible), the big shots, I have contempt for it also and I try to express it. And these are the times when I let you know there's nothing you can do to me, nobody is jerking a chain on me. You can't give me anything and you can't take anything from me. You can kill a bill, I know you all hate to hear this, but I enjoy this part better than any time when I talk to you like this. I can watch you scramble and grovel to save your bills, I can watch you. I can watch you grovel and demean yourself, but you never see me do that. I always walk upright, because there's something demeaning about the position of the creeper and the crawler. When a person cannot look another human being in the eye and the eyes are downcast, it tends to make the head droop, that tends to make the spine bend, and it puts you in a supine, apologetic position, and these lobbyists and others can read that body language. And they know a moral coward when they see one coming. So I'm going to watch all this righteous indignation as these poor women, six months pregnant, who are going to steal from this state something they're not entitled to so they can bring a child into the world. If we were as concerned about the stealing, thieving businessmen as we are about poor women six months pregnant, we could probably cut...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...the crime that really hurts the economy of this country. They're the ones who run off with the millions of dollars. They're the ones who damage the economy. They're still paying off for the savings and loan scandals. Those are the kind of people who invite you all to free meals and rub elbows with you, and you never mention them when you're talking
